ARMORY CLUB IS FORMED AT CLIFTON

Freight Transfer Station Is Established at Longfellow.

Clifton, Ariz., April 12.—With the completion of the armory building in view the members of Co. "E" have organized a club and already about three-fourths of the active members have subscribed towards fitting up the club rooms.

This will be a big thing for Clifton, as heretofore it has lacked a place of this kind, and as a consequence find it a hard matter to entertain visitors to the city. The club rooms will be equipped as soon as possible and will include, in addition to the office, a reception room and library, pool room, card rooms and a buffet. The club members will donate subscriptions for the various periodicals for the library until the club gets fairly under way.

The armory has been built mainly through the energy of Maj. Paul Reisher, assisted by popular subscriptions from the business men of the city, and no help was received from the territory or the government. The club will not be limited to active members of the company, but will also include a number of prominent business men of the city.

The following officers have been elected: B. R. Lanneau, president, and D. K. Mason, secretary and treasurer.

The new freight transfer station that has been installed at Longfellow on the Coronado railroad, is proving to be a big saving in time and expense in handling supplies for the A. C. Co.'s mines and mills at Longfellow and Morenci.

The new transfer station is a switch back in three stages. The cars that are loaded in Clifton are backed to the foot of the incline and the loading transferred directly into the incline cars.

The new transfer also greatly facilitates handling the oil supply of the mines. Two large storage tanks have been built above the Longfellow pumping station, and the oil cars are unloaded from a track directly above them. The oil is then pumped to the top.

WALKS PUT DOWN AT FT. SUMNER, N. M.

New Business Houses Are Opened—Exciting Race For Lot.

Fort Sumner, N. M., April 12.—The cement walk movement has reached the residence section. Two citizens have had fine walks laid.

Occasionally one discovers a lot on which the filings have run out. One such case led to an exciting race between one claimant with a house on wheels and a rapid working carpenter who has lumber on the lot. The carpenter won. A new millinery establishment, new restaurant, a new cold drink stand are among the new things for Fort Sumner.

The cantaloupe growers continue their efforts to line up a fine proposition for this season.

The fine showers of the week have put the dry farmers in good spirits and have recalled many of them to their claims. In town the showers have laid the dust and made the town look much more inviting.

The local agent of the Santa Fe reports that the business for March was more than double that of the same month a year ago.

Typhoid Fever. More of It Here Than in Any Other Civilized Land.

When the digestive process is perfect and the general system is strong and vigorous, no fear need be entertained of germs, typhoid, tubercular or otherwise, as it is only when the system is run down and in a weakened state that these germs or bacilli find favorable lodgment and multiply. We are daily taking into our bodies, by way of the mouth, the nostrils and the skin many disease germs of a destructive nature, but as the conditions within the body are not favorable to their propagation they are rendered inert, destroyed or thrown off without injury. In localities where typhoid and other low forms of fever prevail because of contaminated water or other causes the importance of sustaining the system at a high standard of health, in order to resist the germ influence upon the bodily functions cannot be overestimated. Sunshine, fresh air, proper nourishment and sufficient rest are essential to good health, and whatever contributes to the peace and luxury of perfect digestion must not be neglected. A remedy that excites the flow of the salivary fluid for the digestion of starches and stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach in the digestion of all other foods, and, at the same time, as a simple food, contributes heat and energy to the body, must be of priceless value in sustaining and building up the system and rendering it immune to the depopulation of germs or other evil agents of health.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is indisputably this remedy. It not only serves to keep the bodily health at the highest notch of excellence, but in typhoid fever, especially, when the bodily functions are at their lowest ebb and death seems imminent, it is retained by the stomach when other agents are rejected, and as a food and stimulant sustains life until the crisis is passed. While convalescing after fever it is the greatest strength-giver and body builder known to science.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has to its credit fifty years of success. It is the result of years of careful work and is an absolutely pure distillation of carefully malted grain. Overworked men, delicate women and sickly children will find in Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey the health and strength-giving properties that are so necessary to them. You should have it in your home. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of consumption, pneumonia, grippe, bronchitis, coughs, colds, asthma, malaria, low fevers, stomach troubles and all wasting and weakening conditions if taken as directed.

All druggists, grocers and dealers, or direct, $1.00 a large bottle. Refuse substitutes and imitations; they are impure and dangerous. Send for medical booklet and doctor's advice, both sent free. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

THE CHORUS LADY

Novelized From Forbes's Play of the Same Name by John W. Harding

For a moment no one spoke. All were filled with secret consternation. Had Crawford, after all, told him what had happened?

"Patsy was around to the drug store," lied her mother desperately. "That talk of Nora and Crawford was gossip, the clatter of an oldie tongue."

"It was, was it? This phat's this note he gave me with a demand for the money? He said he lent $300 to get 'em out of a hole and told me to give it to 'em as a souvenir if they hadn't the decency to make good. If it's all gossip, how comes he to have a note for money I never had, signed with me name?"

He thrust the paper under Patsy's nose. She took it and stared at it blankly, finding nothing to say.

"Well, girl, haven't ye a tongue in y'r head?" her father almost shouted and almost dancing with rage. "Who signed 'P. O'Brien' to that paper? Who dared to use my name?"

It was clear that, though the yellow dog streak in Crawford had impelled him to try to make trouble with the note, he had been careful to avoid a violent scene with O'Brien by recounting the events of the evening. Mallory plucked up courage.

"What's the matter with you, pop?" he said. "It's her own name. It's signed 'P. O'Brien.' Why shouldn't she sign it? Why shouldn't she get money from Crawford? It's owing to me, an' what's mine's hers. Crawford an' me's had a run in. I've quit him, an' he's sore, that's all."

Patsy shot a glance of gratitude toward him.

O'Brien was nonplused.

"What would she be doin' with that amount of money?" he inquired.

"That would be tellin'!" laughed Mallory. "That's our own little secret."

Mrs. O'Brien came to his aid.

"Moid y'r own business, Patrick," she ordered, with her old time domineering manner. "It's the excitable man ye are careerin' all over town an' rush the growler if it ain't too late."

"Excuse me, Patsy. 'Twas all a mistake, I see," he said, preparing to do as he was bidden.

"Forget it, pop," she replied, imprinting a kiss on his lips.

O'Brien, all cheerfulness, went out. "God love ye for the good girl ye are," said her mother fondly, "an' may be forgive me, for I need it."

"S-sh!" chided Patsy as she put her arms around the old woman's neck. "Do I come in on this now?" demanded Mallory wistfully.

For answer Patsy put out an arm and included him in her embrace.

"This evenin' settles it," he said, when he also had received the long, sweet impress of the seal of pardon and her mother had abandoned her to his caresses. "We'll take no more chances, dear. We have waited on the future too long. You'll come home with me now."

"Yes, Dan," sighed Patsy happily, resting her head on his shoulder. "An' we'll settle down like a couple of Reubens—us and the cows."
